PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

By Freddy Schader*

Miss Freddy Schader

The Roman deity, Janus, for whom January was named, was pictured with two faces—one looking backward and one forward. The first month of the year is an excellent time for all of us in the library profession to cast a backward glance at what has been accomplished and then to look forward with plans for the future.

The backward glance shows that there were 574 members of the Arkansas Library Association in 1960, the largest membership to date. Through the dedicated work of librarians, trustees, and friends of the library, progress has been made in public, school, college, and special libraries. Increased local and state aid have led to improved county libraries. At least four new library buildings are being constructed. Eleven counties had the one-mill library tax on the ballot at the general election in November. Of this number

Lee, Crittenden, Poinsett, and Perry passed the tax and Little River raised the tax from ½ mill to one mill. Through aid from the Library Services Act eight regional libraries serving 29 counties have extended coverage to rural areas by means of larger book collections, bookmobile service, and more branches and deposits. But there still remain 15 counties in the state without a county library and several areas in the state without any kind of library service except loan by mail from the Arkansas Library Commission.

School libraries also have made progress with more high schools being accredited each year. Slowly the need for an elementary school library has been recognized. This year the State Department of Education raised to $1.25 the per capita expenditure for library books for the elementary school. The April issue of ARKANSAS LIBRARIES was devoted to articles about school libraries. Arkansas was fortunate in being named a Pilot Project State for implementing the new school library standards. Miss Elenora Alexander, Director of Library Services, Houston Independent School District, Houston, Texas, presented the philosophy and background of the new standards to over 500 librarians and elementary school principals during the A. E. A. meeting. At present there are many schools in Arkansas with inadequate libraries and not a single school that can meet the new standards.

College libraries in Arkansas are striving to put the new A. L. A. standards for college libraries to work. Undergraduate courses in Library Science are offered in most of our colleges and a program for recruitment is constantly carried on. A new East Wing has been added to the Riley Library at Ouachita Baptist College and the library at Hendrix College has been remodeled.

* Miss Schader is Administrative Assistant, Arkansas Library Commission.

Progress has been made in the Southwestern Library Association and in the American Library Association. In 1960 the third Southwestern Library Association Scholarship Award of $750.00 went to Miss Phyllis Brodnax of Bastrop, Louisiana. She is now enrolled in the Library School at Louisiana State University. The first Southwestern Library Association Book Award went to Mr. Frank O'Rourke for his book, The Far Mountains.

The American Library Association now has a membership of approximately 23,000 librarians, libraries, trustees, and friends of the library. Of this number 186 are Arkansas members. The association has completely outgrown its headquarters building in Chicago, and on November 17, 1960, ground was broken for a new building. A wooden shovel one hundred years old was used in the ceremony to symbolize the decade that saw the start of a movement toward a national library organization.

Why do I mention these associations as well as our state association? Because you are an integral part of each one. Through the growth of each individual library the image of libraries in the state, the region, and the nation improves. Each association renders a valuable service to you through the conferences and workshops with inspirational and knowledgeable speakers, through leadership of authorities in the profession, through personal services, through establishment of standards, through public relations, and through publications. The services of the associations increase as each member shares ideas and responsibilities with other members.

May a forward look into the remaining months of 1961 show each of us endeavoring to improve our own libraries and working cooperatively in all three associations so that books and ideas may become vital forces in American life.

POSTER CONTEST
SEVENTH ARKANSAS BOOK FAIR
April 30—May 6, 1961

A state-wide poster contest has been planned as a part of the Arkansas Book Fair to be held in Little Rock, April 30—May 6. The Fair for this year is being held in conjunction with the state Festival of Arts.

The contest will give children and young people an opportunity to show their artistic ability and training by making and entering original posters. There will be three divisions in the poster contest: one for high school students, grade 10-12; one for junior high school students, grades 7-9; one for elementary school students, grades 4-6.

Winning posters will be selected by a committee of judges. First prize in each contest division will be a book valued up to $5.00; second prize will be a book valued up to $3.00. The posters will be grouped into categories according to population of cities and towns: (1) entries from schools in cities of 40,000 or more population will be judged together; (2) entries from schools in cities of 19,000 to 39,000 will compete; and (3) entries from schools in towns of less than 19,000 will be judged together. The following points will be considered: creativeness; originality; artistry; and neatness. Prize posters will be exhibited at the Book Fair. Other entries may also be seen during the Fair.

All schools are asked to participate in the state-wide Book Fair by entering posters in the contest. Schools are urged to sponsor local poster contests and to give recognition to winners whose posters will then be sent to the state contest. Contest publicity may be given through assembly programs, radio and newspapers. County and regional librarians will be glad to cooperate with school administrators, librarians, and teachers in this project.

Rules for Poster Contest:

Mrs. Florrinell Morton, president-elect and
Dr. Frances Lander Spain, president.

Arkansas was doubly honored in having both the president and president-elect of the American Library Association as speakers at the thirty-eighth annual conference of the Arkansas Library Association. Dr. Frances Lander Spain, president, addressed a general session on Monday night, October 3, 1960, on the subject, "Wonderful Worlds of Cooperation." Mrs. Florrinell Morton, president-elect, spoke on "Recruitment, a Challenge for All" at the breakfast honoring recent library school graduates on Tuesday morning, October 4, 1960. Other speakers were Miss Evelyn Day Mullen, Library Extension Specialist, Library Services Branch, Office of Education, Washington, D. C., and Mr. Alfred Brandon, Medical Center Library, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky.

REPORT OF SOUTHWESTERN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION TUCSON, ARIZONA—OCTOBER 27-29, 1960

By Freddy Schader*

The eighteenth biennial conference of the Southwestern Library Association was held at the Pioneer Hotel in Tucson, Arizona, October 27-29, 1960. There were 285 members present from the seven states in the Southwest that comprise the region.

Several pre-conference workshops preceded the regular sessions. The Conference for Teachers of Library Science was held at the University of Arizona presided over by Dr. Robert Douglas, Director, Graduate School of Library Science, University of Texas. The Library Services Act Conference was sponsored by the Library Services Branch, U. S. Office of Education and directed by Miss Helen Luce and Miss Evelyn Day Mullen from that office. Miss Virginia Mathews, Associate Director, National Library Week and Miss Dorothy Kittel, ALA Consultant, conducted a workshop for State Executive Directors of National Library Week. A regional workshop for ALA Membership Promotion took the form of an Indian Council, directed by Miss Dorothy Kittel, American Library Association and Mrs. Lucile Raley, Regional ALA Membership Chairman.

The theme of the SWLA conference, Progress and Prospects in the Southwest, was brought out in the opening session by a panel of presidents of state library associations, moderated by James D. Meeks, Director Dallas Public Library. The keynote address at the first session, "Seven Cities of Cibola" was given by William H. Carlson, Director of Libraries, Oregon State System of Higher Education, Corvallis, Oregon. The theme was prevalent again at the joint program meeting of the Public Libraries and Children's and Young People's Sections. A panel, Recent Trends in Children's and Young People's Books, was moderated by Dr. Frances Lander Spain, President, American Library Association with Ray Fry, Director of Library Services, F. E. Compton & Company and Mrs. Anne Merriman Peck, an Arizona author, as the participants. Dr. Arthur McAnally, President, Southwestern Library Association, pointed out the progress in libraries in the Southwest and a look to the future in his talk, "The Far Mountains," so named for the winner of the Book Award.

The banquet in the Terrace Ball Room on Thursday night highlighted the conference. Mr. E. J. Scheerer, Chairman, Book Awards Committee, announced the winner of the first Southwestern Library Association Book Award as Frank O'Rourke for his book 'The Far Mountains.' The keynote address at the banquet was made by Dr. Joseph Wood Krutch on "The Best Thing About a Library". Dr. Krutch, an author, was a former Brander Mathews Professor of English, Columbia University.

Other speakers during the conference were Dr. Irving Lieberman, President, Pacific Northwest Regional Library Association, who discussed the results of a survey in "The Measure of a Region" and Dr. Frances Gillmor, Professor, University of Arizona whose talk was "Listening to the Little Grandfathers".

The free afternoon on Friday was enjoyably spent touring the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum and old Tucson where an old fashioned melodrama was enacted on the street for the benefit of the librarians. A delicious chuck wagon dinner was served prior to the evening meeting.

* Miss Schader, administrative assistant, Arkansas Library Commission, was SWLA secretary, 1958-1960.

In Memoriam

EMMA SCOTT

On September 14, 1960, librarians and educators sustained an acute loss in the death of Emma Scott, editor of the Journal of Arkansas Education and assistant director of field service for A. E. A. Miss Scott devoted her lifelong efforts wholeheartedly to the field of education—first as a classroom teacher, then as a director of guidance at Little Rock Senior High School, and after 1948 to her work with the Arkansas Education Association.

A friend to libraries all over Arkansas she was eager to work for their improvement. She realized that better library facilities meant improved educational opportunities for youth. She served as chairman of the A. A. U. W. committee on higher education that sponsored the book drive for Little Rock University. This committee with the help of university department heads listed definite titles needed by the departments so that the University would have the basic books essential to a four-year college. This drive for needed books became a most worthwhile project.

As a member of the board of the Arkansas Congress of Parents and Teachers she became interested in the Arkansas Book Fairs, and was instrumental in bringing Connie Frick, an outstanding children's author, to the fair at Little Rock in 1957. She and Miss Frick had been friends at the University of Indiana.

To work with her on committees was a joy because of her warm friendliness, her interest in everything that was good for education, and her eagerness to help in whatever way she could. Her deep interest in the educational field and her wide range of activities have been of considerable influence in the state and will continue to touch many lives in the years to come.

—Freddy Schader

OTTO ERNEST RAYBURN

A distinct loss came to Arkansas in the death of Otto Ernest Rayburn of Eureka Springs, widely known author, publisher and authority on Ozark folklore, on October 31. He was editor of the OZARK GUIDE magazine and helped to organize the program for the annual Ozark Folk Festival held in Eureka Springs. His autobiography, Forty Years in the Ozarks, was published in 1957. His other published books included Ozark Country, The Eureka Springs Story and Rayburn's Roadside Chats. One of Mr. Rayburn's major projects was the compilation of an Ozark Folk Encyclopedia containing history, legends and customs which he had collected during his forty years in the Ozarks region.

He was a friend to book lovers and to all those who were interested in the background resources of Arkansas. Through an unflinching instinct for collecting, preserving and describing Ozarkiana he performed in his quiet way a memorable service to historians, folklorists, writers and librarians which will not soon be forgotten.

—LaNell Compton

COL. T. H. BARTON

On Christmas Eve Arkansas lost a loyal friend of libraries as well as a great philanthropist. Col. T. H. Barton, who came to El Dorado in the early days of the oil activity, was well known throughout Arkansas and the nation. His stately bearing, engaging personality and his genuine interest in the people of his adopted state made him the "beloved Colonel" to all who knew him. Although many honors came to him in recent years, his interest in friends and his concern for people in general never changed.

Dr. John H. Buchanan, the minister and close friend of Col. Barton, who came from Birmingham, Alabama, to assist in the funeral service, spoke of the time when the Colonel made the remark to him, "It's not what we get out of life, but what we give that counts."

He lived that philosophy in providing scholarships for boys and girls to attend college, by sending children to summer camp, by paying hospital bills for those who could not pay, by contributing to the Boys Club Library and to school libraries, by supporting the work of the 4-H Clubs, by his interest in improving farming in Arkansas, by supporting the livestock show each year and in countless other ways. His contributions to the welfare of people and to the improvement of the state will never be fully realized by the public in general, and that is the way Col. Barton would prefer that it should be. The name of Thomas Harry Barton will continue to live in the hearts of many friends.

It is impossible to predict future benefits that mankind will derive through the research studies being conducted in the Barton Institute for Medical Research at the University Medical Center. Barton Library in El Dorado stands as a monument to a man who was deeply interested in the education, culture and welfare of his neighbors. The words of Francis Bacon which are inscribed over the front door of the library — "Reading Maketh a Full Man" — shine forth in gold leaf as a light beckoning people to enter and to take advantage of the world of knowledge to be found inside. Who can say to what extent this gift to the people of El Dorado and Union County will influence their lives in the future? For it is one that will endure for years to come.

By Mary Beth Griffith*

The initial meeting of the Arkansas State Committee for National Library Week was held at the Hotel Marion, Little Rock, December 8. State chairman Dr. Paul McCain, president of Arkansas College, Batesville, presided at the general session following a coffee hour. Registration was in charge of Mrs. Dula Reid, Conway, librarian, Faulkner-Van Buren Regional Library, who served as state NLW executive director for 1959.

A former Little Rock educator, Dr. Granville Davis, who is now the director of an adult education center for Southwestern College, Memphis, was the principal speaker. Dr.

* Mrs. Terry Griffith, librarian, White River Regional Library, with headquarters at Batesville, is state NLW executive director for 1960.

Dr. Paul McCain, Chairman, Arkansas NLW Committee; Dr. Granville Davis, guest speaker; Miss Virginia Mathews, consultant.

Davis developed the thesis of his remarks from a study of three books which he commended to the thoughtful attention of the librarians who heard him. They are: The Immoralist, by Andre Gide, Darkness at Noon, by Arthur Koestler, and The Education of Henry Adams. He emphasized the value of a continuing process of education throughout the individual's life in order to know a personal raison d'être and to gain insight into the full meaning of life.

Miss Mathews spoke on the organization of National Library Week, and a question and answer period followed. Mrs. Neal and Mrs. Merlin Moore, chairman, Arkansas Library Commission, discussed the status of Arkansas libraries as affected by state laws. Mrs. Gordon Oates made a motion that the 1961 legislature and the governor be urged to include an adequate building for the Arkansas Library Commission in any building program adopted by the legislature. Active support by committee members was urged in behalf of National Library Week.

After the noon luncheon at Hotel Marion Miss Mathews conducted a workshop session on implementation of local committee organization and grassroots planning toward the accomplishment of the overall purpose of National Library Week.

LETTER TO

Those who so Graciously Contributed to the "Mitchell Fund" for Equipping a Library at the Arkansas Children's Colony:

My Dear Friends,

I wish I could write to each of you personally, but I don't know who you are, as no list was made of the contributors to the above-mentioned fund. I am deeply grateful, and in this manner am thanking all of you for the boost which actually started us on our way to caring for our embryo library. With your gifts I have bought three standard counter-height book cases with adjustable shelves. Seventeen dollars remains in the fund, which I plan to use for material for a low round table to be built in the industrial arts shop.

Mr. Ray, the director of the Colony, and Mr. Mason, head of instruction, have been most helpful in providing a temporary room in one of the class room buildings and have supplied some additional furnishings, a couch, some easy chairs and excellent pole lights. Now we have an informal reading-room type of library to which the children enjoy coming. Last Tuesday over a third of our 383 books were in circulation. Mr. Ray is highly pleased with our progress. Be sure to come to see the Colony if you are anywhere in the vicinity of Conway—and ask to see the library! The Colony is about a mile directly east of Hendrix College on a well-paved road leading into highways 64 and 65.

Next, if there is a club in your community hunting for a project to support (and you have plenty of books in your own library) please suggest that the members might send us books or, better still—as you all know—a check for the book fund, so that we may choose the books most suitable for our children.

Again I thank you.

Yours most gratefully,

(Signed) Constance Mitchell,
Volunteer Librarian,
Children's Colony

NEW SIGN FOR WHITE COUNTY LIBRARY

White County Library, with headquarters at Searcy, has some new and attractive "Public Library" signs. The sign over the door of the county library is not noticeable from the surrounding streets, because of the location of the library building. Signs formerly indicating the library from the two corner approaches were torn down frequently by strong winds and occasionally by Halloween merrymakers. A committee including the county librarian was asked to investigate the possibility of replacement for signs several months before new signs were purchased. Assembled and set in concrete by the city of Searcy, the new signs are both sturdy and attractive.

ERROR BY OMISSION

Since the list of 1960 Arkansas graduates of library schools was published in the October, 1960, issue of ARKANSAS LIBRARIES, we have learned that the name of another graduate was omitted:

RUTGERS UNIVERSITY

Mrs. Virginia Erwin Clark, Asst. librarian, Washington County Library, in charge of Fayetteville Public Library.

Congratulations to Mrs. Clark, and our apologies for the error.

MRS. BELLE McFALL BARNETT, a native Arkansan, has written twenty-one stories for children, published in a collection called From Knee-High to So-High. The stories are suitable for pre-school through the primary grades. Copies of the book are available for $2.00 each from Mrs. Barnett, 521 Tyler Street, Gilmer, Texas. You may want to add one to your Arkansas collection.

Mrs. Barnett was born in Stuttgart, Arkansas, and was reared in a pioneer homestead there. She was a school teacher until her retirement in 1956 and participated in story-telling and book reviews at libraries, schools, clubs, and on the radio. She attended Arkansas State Teachers College.

THE ARKANSAS STUDENT LIBRARIAN'S ASSOCIATION will hold its tenth annual meeting on March 18, 1961, at Southwest Junior High School, Hot Springs.
